

Marina Bay Sands funds Sign Language interpretation service for Deaf Community in Singapore

Integrated resort contributes S$144,000 to fund service set up by the Singapore Association for the Deaf

Singapore (18 February 2013) – As part of Marina Bay Sands' Corporate Social Responsibility programme, Sands for Singapore, the integrated resort is contributing S$144,000 to one of its designated charities, the Singapore Association for the Deaf (SADeaf), to empower the Deaf Community in Singapore.

This funding will go towards providing the Deaf with equal access to information via sign language interpretation services offered by the association. This is the largest single donation received by SADeaf to date for this purpose.

Currently, registered deaf members of SADeaf are entitled to limited free sign language interpretation services through the association's Deaf Access Services (DAS) Interpretation Section, whereas non-members are charged at S$30 for three hours. Previously, due to SADeaf's lack of funding and resource constraints, members were limited to only 20 requests per year with a maximum of four hours per session.

With the funding, SADeaf will be able to reach out to additional individuals and promote awareness of this sign language interpretation service. With an estimated hearing-impaired population of 500,000 in Singapore, the donation will enable many more individuals who require communication support to better function in their daily activities.

Dr Christopher Low Wong Kein, President of SADeaf, said, "SADeaf aims to provide accessibility for the Deaf through sign interpretation in various settings. For instance, the service will greatly benefit a deaf student attending an institute of higher learning with no communication support. SADeaf hopes to bring about awareness to the tertiary institutions that long-term policy and budget are important for deaf students to gain access to information. The generous support from Marina Bay Sands will provide a head start towards this goal and will allow SADeaf to boost its resources to support this critical service for the Deaf Community."

Marina Bay Sands' support has enabled SADeaf to almost double its current pool of sign language interpreters, by adding two more interpreters to the existing three. With additional staff and resources, SADeaf will also roll out proactive outreach programmes to various stakeholders to encourage the use of communication support service. This service will enable the Deaf to receive first-hand information to make informed decisions, empowering them to fully participate in their daily activities and lead independent lives.

Mr. George Tanasijevich, President and Chief Executive Officer of Marina Bay Sands, said, "Marina Bay Sands is pleased to present this donation to SADeaf in support of its Sign Language interpretation service. Sands for Singapore is committed to provide for the population in meaningful ways, to reach out and empower those who are less privileged, and to use our unique resources to make a positive difference in the lives of Singaporeans. We welcome the opportunity to continue our support of SADeaf's outreach to 500,000 deaf and hearing-impaired people in the local community."

Along with additional financial support in 2012, Marina Bay Sands hosted students from SADeaf and Mountbatten Vocational School, an affiliate school of SADeaf, on an eco-tour of the integrated resort to learn more about its green initiatives and sustainability practices. In October 2012, Marina Bay Sands Team Member volunteers also participated in SADeaf's inaugural Walk and Fly with Me Day, a fund-raising carnival held at Marina Barrage.

Leading up to the carnival, Marina Bay Sands invited teachers from SADeaf to conduct sign language workshops for Team Members and active volunteers of Sands for Singapore. This meaningful exchange of culture and knowledge enabled basic communication between Team Members and members from SADeaf, allowing them to interact with one another.

Besides SADeaf, Marina Bay Sands has also enabled other Singapore charities and organisations to help communities in need. This contribution to SADeaf comes on the back of the integrated resort's most recent S$150,000 donation to Metta School in October 2012 to fund its hospitality training facilities, benefiting some 91 students. Metta School caters to academic needs of children with learning disabilities and is also a designated charity of Marina Bay Sands.

SADeaf also provides other areas of support to the Deaf Community. These include hearing care, financial assistance, counselling, case management, sign language classes, tuition and enrichment programmes.

To date, SADeaf receives an average of over 80 requests for interpretation services every month from more than 65 deaf individuals.
